HOW TO CONTRIBUTE

How to Contribute

Thank you for your interest in contributing to Marketcetera. This guide provides an overview of information important for contributors to know.

- 1. Contributing code
 - a. Please see our Code Contribution Guide on the process for setting up a development environment, forking Marketcetera, making updates and submitting pull requests and instructions on becoming an approved contributor.
- 2. Security vulnerability disclosure
 - a. If you suspect a security vulnerability, please report it in private email to info@marketcetera.com. We ask that you do NOT create publicly viewable issues for suspected security vulnerabilities.
 - b. You can view our full responsible disclosure policy here.
- 3. Available JIRA tickets
 - a. While any JIRA ticket may be considered by the core team, the easiest way to have a request accepted is by working on tickets from a list of open tickets marked "open" by the core team
 - b. You can also review a list of planned tickets to make sure you're not working on something that's been publicly declared in-progress by the core team.
